Setting the Scene

Belsize Park has been a desirable area since its Georgian inception. Once part of the Abbey of Westminster's estate, the area began to develop in the 17th century and flourished during the Victorian era with the arrival of grand stucco villas and leafy avenues. Its name, from the French 'bel assis' (or "beautifully situated"), reflects its elevated position between Hampstead and Primrose Hill. Long favoured by writers, artists and intellectuals, Belsize Park retains a village-like charm today. Belsize Grove was originally built as Haverstock Terrace in 1825-26, with just seven houses. It was renamed later in the 19th century as the neighbourhood grew, and the street was subsequently renumbered. Now part of the historic Belsize Estate, Belsize Grove is known for its elegant villas, leafy aspect, and enduring architectural appeal.

The Grand Tour

The building is set along a quiet street lined with characterful stucco frontages; a row of silver birches casts dappled shade across the handsome façades. Entry is via a communal front door, hallway and stairs.

This apartment unfolds on the upper ground floor - or the piano nobile - of the building. Sweeping proportions are dressed with original details that include elaborate moulding and cornicing, tall skirtings, and classic panelling. Oak parquet flooring begins on arrival and runs throughout the home.

A neat entrance hall leads directly into a vast open-plan reception room and kitchen. Set at the front, the room is flooded with light from a full-height bay window. Lavish 19th-century moulding with acanthus and egg-and-dart motifs has been carefully preserved.

Along one wall is a sleek, contemporary kitchen, with bespoke joinery painted in elegant tones of 'French Gray' by Farrow and Ball. Distinct Calacatta Vagli Oro marble (from Diespeker and Co) countertop extends upwards to form an exaggerated splashback and an open shelf that runs the length of the wall. There is room for a large dining table in front, perfect for leisurely dinner parties.

The principal bedroom is positioned on the opposite side of the plan, with a corresponding bay window that floods the airy bedroom with natural light. Fitted cabinetry lines one wall, providing ample storage, and the same sumptuous moulding as the living space continues across here. The smart bathroom is opposite and has understated, high-quality fittings by Lusso Stone.

A second, smaller room, currently used as a study, lies adjacent to the principal. It is divided from the hallway by floor-to-ceiling Crittall windows that allow light from French doors beyond to flow unimpeded to the hallway.

Through the doors is a small terrace with room for a table and chairs and potted plants - a romantic space for a morning coffee or an evening glass of wine. Exiting the flat through the communal hall there is a private garden which is home to a self-contained studio. Stretching to around 216 sq ft with a shower room/ WC, the space is flooded with natural light from large windows and sky lights. Ensnared in green, a tiered patio wraps around the minimalist timber clad façade of the charming garden annexe.

The Great Outdoors

A large leafy private garden spaces is accessed from the rear of the building. Shaded with mature plantings of species shrubs and herbaceous borders, the lush space is an oasis of calm.

Out and About
